

Leukemia

Dear Dr. Lin

I am very happy with the results of the blood-work we had done on November 1st in comparison with the blood-work done at hospital just 23 days prior on Oct 9th. It has only been 26 (well 25 really, as we left the evening of Oct 11th), since Bill left hospital.

2 days before he left is the last lot of paperwork of blood tests I received. See attached for comparison results.

During this 21 days, he has had to normalize his body by removing the fluid build up (up to 40 lbs of fluid), get rid of the yellow skin, the red rash that covered his body, stop his skin peeling over his entire body, detox from the onslaught of major drugs and re-build his immune system while also gaining some weight and muscle mass. Help his cells actually be capable of absorbing fluids and nutrients again and oh, let's not forget killing the herpes and healing the sores while trying to improve his blood.

Amazingly enough I read the warnings on just three of the many drugs he was given in hospital for the leukemia and the herpes.

How is this sensible??? Why are naturopathic doctors not allowed to practice in New York State??? Why is our only choice of health care toxic drugs??? Why are homeopathic and herbal medicines not allowed in hospitals? One reason is because they are not approved by the FDA. Well guess what, one of the bone marrow tests performed has not been cleared or approved by the FDA either.

So how can a patient have the same type of monitoring which is often needed to make sure what one is doing is having positive effects. That right to choose has been taken away and who is up in arms about it?

Look at the condition he was in when he came home for me to single handedly look after him? He hadn't been able to walk since the chemo on Sept 23rd I think it was. What condition would Bill be in if he had accepted and continued with the plastic surgery, 5 more rounds of chemo and continued the intravenous antibiotics that they wanted to continue giving him that made him feel sick and horrible?

How much more fluid build up could his body have taken? I mean red bloody water leaked out of his legs constantly while there due to being so full of fluid. After the bone marrow biopsy first they said his CLL was stage 2 and nothing to worry about. Then it was all of a sudden it was stage 4 and he needed chemo.

I think if he had have just had his electrolyte imbalance balanced, he would have been in a better condition when he returned home. If hospitals allowed natural healing products that have no negative side effects and actually fed patients nutritious food designed for each patients condition, we would have a great health care system. Instead, we are the mercy of people who only know how to kill everything in the body but don't know how to get the body back to an actual healthy state.

It is shocking to me. Seems like few others are shocked by this though. Actually, I know many thousands of people who are shocked by it and it is these people who will be the ones who start a whole new way of looking after the health of the citizens of this nation and the entire world. The current system cannot and will not last for too much longer. Too many have awakened to it's false claims and are aware of the quarterly profits that are it's main focus. Too many believe this system is the only way to go and that it is effective and it works. I do not believe in our current medical model in the least.

That is not to say most of the nurses and doctors are not in it to help people. Of course they are, but many do not realize what is actually going on underlying the decisions that are being made regarding patients health by those above them.

Yes, I am rambling and ranting and raving. If you don't like it, then come and help look after Bill and help him get back to health or if you think the hospital can do a better job, come and take him back there (if he will go) and we shall see. If he keeps doing what we have been doing but ups the anti on green drinks and stops sugary and starchy foods for a while, he will heal so much faster. Also, more oils daily will also move things faster. I believe he wants to continue what we are doing.

It is a wonderful and beautiful and humbling thing for us to experience. I am certain the outcome of this whole ordeal will be one of total recovery for Bill and so well worth all the help you have given us.

Thank you. Thank you. Thank you.
